Leadership Team members are asked to read "When the rules are fair, but the game isn't." by Muktha Jost, Edward L. Whitfield, & Mark Jost in advance of the meeting and be prepared to discuss: 1) Did the article help you see the role that economic injustice plays in systemic racism? (how so or why not) 2) What effects did this study and the game have on you and your view of race, education, and the wealth gap in America? 3) Are our political and government systems, and the laws and organizations governing them, conducive to helping us build a true community or tearing us apart (or do they merely fail only particular groups of people)?
